

2007 Child Abuse and Neglect Fact Sheet

Physical Abuse

Physical abuse is non-accidental physical injury of a child inflicted by a parent or caretaker which ranges from superficial bruises and welts to broken bones, burns, serious internal injuries and in some cases, death. The definition of physical abuse includes actions that create a substantial risk of physical injury to the child.

Physical Neglect

Physical neglect is withholding, or failing to provide, adequate food, shelter, clothing, hygiene, medical care, education, and/or supervision, such that the child's physical, mental or emotional condition is impaired or at imminent risk of being impaired.

Sexual Abuse

Sexual abuse is when a parent or caretaker commits a sexual offense against a child or allows a sexual offense to be committed, such as rape, sodomy, engaging a child in sexual activity, engaging a child in—or promoting a child's—sexual performance.

Emotional Abuse

Emotional abuse includes parents' or caretakers' acts or omissions that cause or could cause serious conduct, cognitive, affective, or other mental disorders. For example, torture, close confinement or the constant use of verbally abusive language to harshly criticize and denigrate a child. It also includes emotional neglect— withholding physical and emotional contact to the detriment of the child's normal emotional development, and in extreme cases, physical development.

Risk Factors

A combination of individual, relational, community, and societal factors contribute to the risk of child maltreatment. Although children are not responsible for the harm inflicted upon them, certain individual characteristics have been found to increase their risk of being maltreated. Risk factors are contributing factors—not direct causes. Examples of risk factors include:

- Social isolation in families
- Parents' lack of understanding of children's needs and development
- Physical or mental disabilities in children that may increase caregiver burden
- Parents' history of domestic abuse and/or domestic violence
- Poverty and other socio-economic disadvantages, such as unemployment
- Lack of family cohesion
- Substance abuse
- Young, single, non-biological parents
- Poor parent-child relationships and negative interactions
- Parental thoughts and emotions supporting maltreatment behaviors
- Parental stress and distress, including depression or other mental health conditions
- Community violence

Reports and numbers of children

In 2007 between 76,104 and 83,502* New York State children were abused or neglected, between 17.2 and 18.9 of every 1,000 children in the state. According to the NYS Central Register of Child Abuse and Maltreatment (the Child Abuse Reporting Hotline), 154,837 reports of suspected child abuse or neglect, involving 206,194 children were received. Upon investigation, 50,093 (32 percent) reports were substantiated as situations of child abuse and/or neglect. There are more victims than reports because more than one child is involved in some cases. Compared to the prior year, the number of reports decreased 2.5, from 158,855; the number of substantiated reports decreased 2.8 percent, from 51,552; and the number of victims decreased 1 percent from 76,797.

*The NYS CPS Report and 2007 Child Maltreatment Report have different approaches to counting the number of victims.

Nationwide, an estimated 794,000 children were victims of abuse and neglect in 2007, a victimization rate of 10.6 for every 1,000 children in the country (a child was counted each time he or she was found to be a victim; the adjusted estimate is 753,357 unique child victims). States investigated or assessed 3,500,000 children because of suspected abuse or neglect, a decrease of 2.8 percent from 2006. Compared to 2006, the number of substantiated victims in 2007 decreased by 14.9 percent.

Types of maltreatment

Child neglect continues to comprise the largest portion of cases of child maltreatment. According to the federal report Child Maltreatment 2007, figures are as follows:

Child victims in the United States	Child victims in New York State
• 59% were neglected	• 57.3% were neglected
• 13.1% were multiple types of maltreatment	• 34.8% were multiple types of maltreatment
• 10.8% were physically abused	• 1.5% were physically abused
• 7.6% were sexually abused	• 0.7% were sexually abused
• 4.2% were psychologically or emotionally maltreated	• <0.1% were psychologically or emotionally maltreated
• < 1% were medically neglected	• 0.8% were medically neglected
• 4.2% other types of maltreatment	• 4.9% other types of maltreatment

“Other types of maltreatment” include, for example, abandonment, threats of harm, or congenital drug addiction.

Fatalities

In New York State in 2007, 73 children died as a result of abuse or neglect, a fatality rate of 2.18 per 100,000 children. This is a 2.6 percent decrease from 75 fatalities that occurred in 2006. Nationwide in 2007, an estimated 1,760 children died as a result of abuse or neglect, 2.35 of every 100,000 children in the population. This is a 15 percent increase from the 1,530 fatalities that occurred the previous year. Children younger than 1 year old accounted for 44.2 percent of fatalities, and 75.7 percent of fatalities were children younger than 4 years old.
